Description

Reconstructive surgery is performed on abnormal structures of the body caused by congenital defects, developmental abnormalities, trauma, surgery, infection, tumors or disease.[16]

This policy outlines the medical necessity criteria for cosmetic and reconstructive procedures.

Note:

- Please refer to CP.MP.95 Gender Affirming procedures for procedures related to treatment of gender dysphoria.

Policy/Criteria

I. It is the policy of QualChoice, Ambetter from Arkansas Health and Wellness, and Arkansas Total Care that reconstructive procedures are considered medically necessary when meet one of the following:

A. Intent of the is performed to improve the function of an abnormal body part caused by illness, trauma, or a congenital defect after failure of conservative therapy (unless conservative therapy is not standard of care for the condition, or is contraindicated):

B. The procedure is performed to improve the function of an abnormal body part caused by illness, trauma, or a congenital defect after failure of conservative therapy (unless conservative therapy is not standard of care for the condition, or is contraindicated);

1. Breast reconstructive surgery due to trauma, the loss of breast tissue due to congenital or non-congenital disease or for prophylaxis against a future disease of the breast does not require prior conservative therapy.

C. Certain reconstructive procedures may be covered if improving appearance is the only benefit, e.g. post-mastectomy breast reconstruction. These procedures may include, but are not limited to:

1. Post-mastectomy, medically necessary lumpectomy, or other medically necessary breast surgery resulting in asymmetry: breast reconstruction, including nipple reconstruction, tattooing and surgery on contralateral breast to restore symmetry, or any procedural variations, iterations or approaches associated with breast reconstruction;

Background

Reconstructive surgery is performed on abnormal structures of the body caused by congenital defects, developmental abnormalities, previous or concurrent surgeries, trauma, infection, tumors or disease. It is generally performed to improve the functioning of a body part and may or may not restore a normal appearance.[2] Functional impairment is a health condition in which the normal function of a part of the body or organ system is less than age appropriate at full capacity, such as decreased range of motion, diminished eyesight or hearing, etc. that variably impacts activities of daily living.[3]

Cosmetic surgery is performed to reshape normal structures of the body in order to improve the appearance and self-esteem of a patient. It is generally considered not medically necessary.[1]
